Christmas Party Bingo

Grown-ups & office party edition

A free Hay-List printable · 10 cards · no caller needed

Six farm influencers. One Christmas party. Nobody remembers who organised it.

How to play

1. Print one card per guest. There are 10 different cards, so nobody has the same one.
2. Hand them out at the start of the party, with a pen.
3. Tick a square when it happens in front of you. The middle square is free.
4. Five in a row wins: across, down or corner to corner. Shout BINGO.
5. Decide the prize before you start. It avoids a meeting.

Colonel Cluckson is listening to the gadget talk. Dottie disagrees with every New Year diet. Wattson knows a guy. Coco does not approve of tinsel as a scarf. Turbo started the dares. Solomon says it's only December.

All 30 squares (every card has 24 of them)

- "We should do this more often"
- A reply-all about the party
- Secret Santa gift is a candle
- Secret Santa gift is a mug
- Someone mentions their New Year diet
- "Just one drink" becomes three
- A speech runs long
- Someone still talks about work
- Tinsel worn as a scarf
- The playlist repeats the same song
- Somebody arrives fashionably late
- An out-of-office reply is already on
- Someone explains their new gadget
- A group photo takes four attempts
- Someone says "I know a guy"
- The buffet runs out of the good thing first
- A Christmas jumper with lights
- Someone leaves without saying goodbye
- "Let's circle back in January"
- A dance move from another decade
- Someone asks who organised this
- A phone at 1% battery
- A toast nobody could hear
- Somebody dares somebody
- Leftovers go home in a napkin
- "Slow down, it's only December"
- A regifted present is spotted
- The coat pile collapses
- Someone promises to email the photos
- The last ones standing discuss taxis
